

Existence is beyond the power of words
To define:
Terms may be used
But are none of them absolute.
In the beginning of heaven and earth
There were no words,
Words came out of the womb of matter;
And whether a man dispassionately
Sees to the core of life
Or passionately
Sees the surface,
The core and the surface
Are essentially the same,
Words making them seem different
Only to express appearance.
If name be needed, wonder names them both:
From wonder into wonder
Existence opens.

Just as existence is beyond the power of words to define, so also is art — for the two are synonymous. We can understand being only by viewing it as art. This publication is a meager attempt to convey the art-of-being in the Duke community. The views expressed in the copy and photographs are individual impressions and are therefore not intended as fact. Neither does each individual view necessarily express the sentiments of the university as a whole.

“. . . four letter words have no place in a university publication”

P. Huber Hanes, D*ke University Trustee

Due to the controversy generated by the 1970 Chanticleer, the Publications Board would appreciate any comments about your reactions towards the book.

It is not the sort of book I would be proud to show my children in telling them of the wonderful years I spent at Duke. It will not be included on the shelves in my home with high school yearbooks and the 1968-69 Chanticleer. I am sorry to say the memories of 1969-1970 at Duke will end up at the bottom of a box in the attic because the 1970 Chanticleer is not a book to be proud of. I do not wish to show it to any of my friends because they might accept it as a sample of Duke's atmosphere. I love Duke and would not want this piece of trash to be associated with the school as I know and will remember it.

Fantastic—shows the student body that if they just sit back, they won't always get what they want!!!!!!

A yearbook should be something to save, cherish and brag about.

The 1970 Chanticleer is definitely a work of art, as any yearbook should be. For those who want to see only their homecoming queen and a review of social events—let 'em take instamatic shots.

There were . . . few photographs of our beautiful campus. I would like to see color pictures of the chapel, gardens and campus. I would like individual pictures of all faculty members . . . Individual student photographs should be larger.

Book I was excellent for those who desired that commonplace, ordinary, nauseously trite type of yearbook. But it was Book II that presented extraordinary photography, pointed articles, and all too real satire.

There was entirely too much writing in the '70 Chanticleer. Photographs are much more pleasing to the human eye than pages and pages of black and white print.

The book is a delight to read because you can always find something you have overlooked before. You can't skim through and forget it. It presents a realistic expression of student life at Duke, complete with ugly and beautiful moments.

My disappointment is almost as great as my embarrassment that my Alma Mater would publish such a thing—and put D U K E on it.

I enjoyed the yearbook and think I learned a few things from it. I can't say that I was offended by the language used, which is what I suppose caused the controversy. I thought it was kind of funny and appropriate.

How the heck could you print the second book? It wasn't fit to let my dog read.

It was a beautiful thing and very much needed on campus. That it was accepted with so little grace is proof positive of the need for it and for other serious and creative student literary efforts. Keep it up, and don't let these absurd anachronistic trustees get you down!

I burned mine. Next year it won't be only books that burn. Garbage! I use it as a step for my kitten so she can reach her litter box.

I don't quite understand how it got published without being censored. I'd like to meet the individuals on the staff just to see what kind of people they are.

As for charges about obscenity, I think they are ridiculous. I found nothing offensive about the yearbook. Frankly, I think the staff should continue the trend and perhaps the whole damn board of trustees will resign.

Second rate imagination.
Horrible waste of money
Idiotic content
Terrible binding

. . . too literary, too aesthetic.
I myself would love to see a hard-back book full of candid shots of students and the school.

Very well done — the 1970 Chanticleer generated controversy only because it applied itself to areas of valid concern nationally.

. . . too much emphasis was given to artistic endeavors . . .
I also felt that the way you took apart our football team was disgraceful. Being a ballplayer, being and playing for a school may be old-fashioned to some —but not to me. How many of you people know . . . a member of the team? Know how they feel about their playing? Their school? You'll find they are much more human than you think.

Don't let the Jocks get you down.

I gave mine away!

. . . my friends from home thought everyone at Duke had a beard, smoked grass, and demonstrated instead of attending class!

I felt it to be the highlight of the year. Perfect, excellent, unbelievably funny. The prose was remarkable. Cannot conceive of anything surpassing it! Too bad everyone at Duke doesn't have the creativity it exhibited. Friends at other schools ate it up. Literally became the fit of parties . . . P.S. Did anyone not like it? They could always throw the good part out and keep the nostalgia.

We all look forward to the day the yearbook is distributed, but this year the day was met with displeasure and outrage.

I wouldn't have paid over $5.00 for it.

I hope that Chanticleers of that type will be avoided like the plague in the future!

The 1970 Chanticleer was a first rate yearbook. I can see how the rah, rah Duke frat man might have been upset that the yearbook did not have your pictures of beer guzzling and good, clean fun, but I think the Chanticleer would make a mistake not to continue along the 70 book's lines this year. I do not believe in excessive praise of anything, but the Chanticleer, along with the Chronicle, leaves me with vestiges of hope for dear ole Duke.

A yearbook is something people look back to fifty years later

. . . when they're wrinkled and arthritic. No one ever reads a yearbook. They look at pictures and remember. My parents still look at and reminisce over their college yearbooks.

Polarization celebrated; synthesis denied as it is by the university structure in general. In general people snarled and chalked up another mess to the freaks . . . their laughter at the expense of the student bodies further frowns at the damn-commieradicallonghairpushersect. come on. Love to the people.

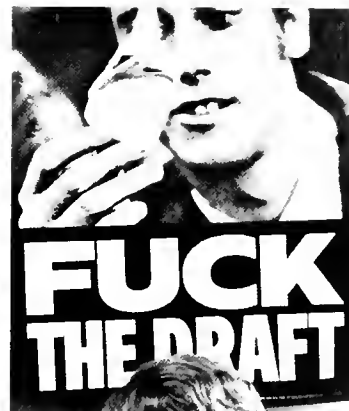

It is absolutely ludicrous that anybody would be appalled by the most creative yearbook Duke's ever come up with. If Duke is ever going to break away from its generally shamefully conservative Southern tradition, it must not only tolerate yearbooks such as this, but must welcome and encourage them. The use of four-letter expletives and a mere handful of nude pictures (or was it one?) indeed enhance one's understanding of life at Duke and elsewhere. The puritanical absence of such valid literary and artistic devices in previous yearbooks only served to falsify our understanding of Duke.

. . . a yearbook's purpose is that of presenting a school as it is; not as alumni, parents, administration, and trustees wish it to be.

Print the yearbook for the people.

Life at Duke is a Game.

The instructions are very simple: find yourself and those people and things around you somewhere within the confines of the Duke Game—up, down, forward, backward, diagonally, reversed. Mark your presence and their presence as indicated. After you've found everything there is to be found in the Game, erase all your pencil marks and leave for ten years. When you return to Duke, look: how many of these things will you find again? How many vestiges of the past will remain? How much will have changed?

WHY DOES EVERYTHING THAT'S BAD
 SEEM WORSE ON A SUNDAY

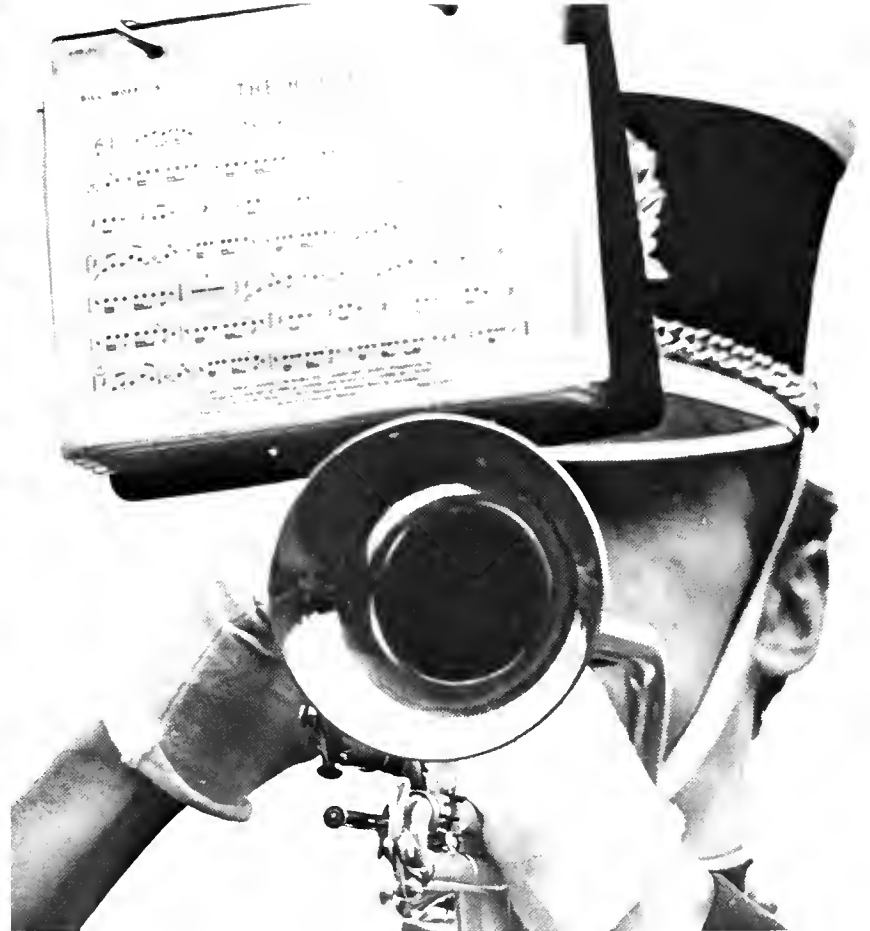

"The attitude I try to take in my column is basically that the human body is not obscene . . . People seem to relate more easily to four-letter words when talking about parts or functions of their bodies."

This was the fourth Thanksgiving since he had gone forth from that bastion of secondary learning, the citadel of education, the building of which at once he was the master and at the same time the pawn. With what kudos he had left four years earlier! It had been a long time, and looking back at that building, he felt a strange mixture of nostalgia and cynicism.

But wait a minute, just put on that old mono copy of Blonde on Blonde and roll back into the not-so-distant past. Walk along the street, and there it is, the high school that spawned succeeding generations of world leaders, heads of corporations, professors, professional students, housewives, auto repairmen, welfare recipients, drug addicts.

Perhaps with a little trepidation, he opened the door. Nothing. He walked in. But there was the same bulletin board with what could have easily been the same faded news clippings. Across the hall, the same college counseling sessions as always; it might have been 1967. Maybe the faces had changed, but the spectre of the place hadn't.

The mimeograph machine spits and spews forth a stream of announcements, the nurse is still coping with the black kid who's vomiting his guts out in her office but with the most amazing smile on his face, and then even the stench of the printing ink, the clanking of the 1940 Multigraph 215, and the light bulb — had it been changed in four years?—still radiated forth a naked 140 watts.

Somehow, though, there was a relationship somewhere, nebulously defined, hopelessly jumbled up with thousands of other past incidents. He felt he couldn't relate to it then, and he certainly felt he couldn't relate to it now, but yet just beyond his fingertips, just past the barrier of expression there was a kinship.

He turned. Yes, this is the same education factory that had cut his umbilical cord so long ago and sent him off to New York City, Boston, San Francisco, Durham, Hanover, New Hampshire . . . it really didn't matter where. It was nothing but a mother, bringing forth her youth with relentless effort, sending out her idealistic young warriors to do battle with the tribunals of higher education, but perhaps a bit wistfully because they'd be back later, just as he stood there, and it would never be quite the same. The first Thanksgiving or Christmas there was a strange, fanciful combination of old and new: the old pro back to his old haunts with new stories of new places. The next year, the glitter had disappeared and the tarnish was starting to show through a little, the alienation had progressed slightly further. Then finally a real relationship difficulty, bitterness, frustration, resentment. The final result is just cynicism tinged with a little nostalgia. A little less innocent, a little more hardened, a little older.

Bridge? change channels

I'm approaching A.'s room at The Section with apprehension. All the way down the hall. Noise (jackson-five and a sports argument). Do the doors to the left and right of me lead to the rooms of the Future Real Estate and Insurance Agents of America, Inc.?

Alone. In the hall of The Fraternity, and it's physically obvious that I don't belong. (cold-stare. The Discus Thrower has just emerged from the shower. Notes my presence with a scowl.) I feel sorry for every inch of my hair.

A noisy hall, but no beer stench (did I honestly expect it on a Wednesday?); preconception becoming misconception?

My mind moves now in all directions for fear of the strange surroundings. I am realizing the ounce of grass in my pocket and an alien atmosphere paranoia). A. is waiting (hope the stuff is good—20 a lid, but RS is known to own stock in an ore-gano plantation, a blatant conflict of interests).

A brother, a Hercules-Medusa amalgam with a touch of Phyllis Diller (hair like cascades of Brillo) (would DK call him a "New-Old World pastiche?") is rather obligingly asking me if I'm looking for anyone in particular. A., I say, and now I'm being led to his door. I thank Brillo, he nods, (is he stoned? no, it's wednesday.

so, it's wednesday. that's never stopped me before . . . .) and leaves.

A candle burns as I enter (red, bayberry-scented, homemade). A. is seated Indian-style on those uncarpeted fratfloors with rolling papers between his feet. I'm thinking about the end of last year, sitting with A. in that unbelievably boring theory class while the world burned around us (we both got P's, thank God for Cambodia).

It is hard for my freak-acquaintances back in the independents to comprehend that, even with our disparate backgrounds and polarized lifestyles, we are friends: more resembling Abbott and Costello than Damon and Pythias, but a working relationship nonetheless, coming about through some intangible social chemistry I have yet to fully understand. A Rousseau and Revolution ivory-tower dweller and a potential gladiator for Suitcase Simpson.

A. is a jock to some: he's able to pass for the kind of kid who'd sell Readers Digest subscriptions during his spare time (i.e. after wrestling practice). Not so.

Sight impact. Smile. Door closed (locked) and now we're exchanging informal plaisanteries. Gone is the tightness I felt. A haven. My coat's off, the candle projects uneasy patterns of shadow.

now we're wrecked; RS didn't fail me this time (seedy but, wow, potent). How will I write all this down? — this is a Chanticleer EXCLUSIVE. Muscles around my cheeks are hurting from the grins. A. has this stoned-satisfied look on his face, and I'm wondering how to start asking . . . oh, Christ, how do you interview a friend?

Q. Quick, before we get hungry, let me ask you some questions. Do you think of yourself as a freak?

A. I dislike the category as much as you do; what do you think? I know I need a sign that says "FREAK" for anyone to know it, but I think that I'm as much a freak as anyone else.

Q. But why do you think you're a freak? Because you smoke? Can you . . .

A. Lots of guys smoke in the frats, constantly. They're a little bit more clandestine about it, you know, towel under the door, incense burning, utter secrecy — but they do it. But I'm a freak basically by nature, I'm not like the others who live here. I like to think of myself as a more individualistic person. Drugs isn't the thing to categorize people by — just look at the real jocks! I've never seen so many stoned jocks as this year—acid jocks, mesc jocks, grass jocks. And no wonder . . . no one realizes what abuse these guys suffer!

Q. What do you mean? Can you be specific?

A. Well, like . . . the stress that's placed on those guys in the locker room before the football games. They become superpsyched muscle-machines. It's unhuman, it's not right.

Q. But . . .

A. and Hair. Those guys get so much shit if they've got the balls to grow their hair longer than normal. We look like the straightest team in the conference, like marines! There's no excuse for that at Duke: these guys go through physical abuse, feel unappreciated, are allowed so little freedom; no wonder they're so belligerent when they're let loose! And DUAA and the coaches are very much to blame. I've never heard so much dissatisfaction on the part of the players as this year. I can't condone some of the antisocial things that the jocks do (certain individuals do, I should say), but many are perfectly normal guys who are warped by DUAA demands. But they're changing. As a whole, I think Duke's athletes are becoming much more openminded, more personable, more human.

Q. Are many of the jocks and frats thinking more about politics and social problems? Anti-war sentiment and inequality . . .

A. I can't speak for everyone, but generally, we're all becoming more open. They may not be activists or protesters yet, but I think that things are changing. I'm personally very much against the war, but I won't protest: I look so straight . . .

Q. Why are you so straight-looking by the way?

A. Simple — facial hair annoys me, it itches me, and I don't think I look good in shoulder-length hair. Come on, I'm not that straight-looking, am I?

A. Sorry, but yes.

Q. Well, I'll have to work on it. I hope my straightness doesn't intimidate anyone. I feel that everyone should do whatever they feel like doing — no holds barred (that's a jock term, you know.)

Q. How are you doing socially at Duke? Did you have any problems adjusting, any undue pressures on you because you're athletics-prone?

A. I found it harder to get accepted socially, but not because I'm athletic, but because I'm not outgoing or conversational, so there's no one to blame except myself for any of my social problems. My grades are better than average, I work pretty hard, and I'm rarely at my fraternity functions, because I'm either working or too wrecked to go! I'm really fed up right now, I'm not thinking very logically.

Q. When did you first experience drugs?

A. First semester freshman year. Probably before you did!

Q. I'm embarrassed — hey, I'm supposed to be the freak! I started during sophomore year. But I bet I've seen more basketball games than you!

A. Probably, I go to games, but I'm rarely interested, except that many of those guys out there are my personal friends, some of whom I've gotten stoned with, off season, of course.

Q. Of course. What are you going to do with your life?

A. I'm not sure — you know, I think pretty deeply about things like life and death, my future and my existence. Drugs help me to see falseness in things about me: I would hope that there is more to life than constant struggles and problems and testing. I don't want to be forced, I want to be my own boss — no nine-to-five suburban-straight-life crap for me. I think a lot about love, too, and people. It's really important that I'll be able to be with people. Love is a common denominator — we all have to love, because very little else has any meaning. I worry about how far apart we're all going — I can see it and even feel the separation happening when I'm stoned. But it's real — we're falling apart. There is nothing lasting, everything is transient. How unloving this crazy human race is becoming! We all have to die together on this earth: why shouldn't we all make living together more enjoyable? I sometimes feel our lives are only dreams, each of us in a different dream, and we're all interacting in one large dream-trip . . .

Q. But this is a dream, isn't it?

. . . for a moment I lost myself—actually lost my life. I was set free! I dissolved in the sea, became white sails and flying spray, became beauty and rhythm, became moonlight and the high dim-starred sky! I belonged, without past or future, within peace and unity and a wild joy, within something greater than my own life, or the life of Man, to Life itself! To God, if you want to put it that way.

All the local pharmacies had been cracking down. First off, the owner, who doubles for a full-time pharmacist, hadn't been coming off for anybody recently, and that includes 80-year-old women with asthma. In fact, it was all but a lost hope, or so we thought. But then, for some unknown reason, we decided we'd give it one last try. In retrospect, I guess we would have done anything to evade DM.

The honeymoon was sweet but quite short: at first Cedric would come off for Cos, but that lasted exactly four days. One day a week later a friend went in with a handful of scripts to be filled, and then hit Cedric for A-C, and he came off grudgingly. He won't do it again.

Filled with false confidence, I ripped the label off the bottle and went in for the score. And damn if Cedric, Durham's equal of the Praetorian Guard, wasn't sick that day! There was some old man who looked like a retired bus driver, you know the kind who pastes bumperstickers saying, "If you don't like police, then next time you're robbed, call a hippie," on the bumpers of their Impalas, and he was standing back there, counting pills, with this "I am the official Pharmacist" look plastered all over his face, just like you see in Reader's Digest. I figured I better throw him a curve ball, so I asked for Actifed. In fact he had a whole bottle poured, labelled, and ready to go when his pharmacist-companion (who had appeared out of nowhere) reminded him that he couldn't sell that "without a preeee-cription." He came back with this disgusted look on his face and said he couldn't sell that one, but offered me something else. I asked him what he had in mind.

"Wellll, I can give you the Cheracol, the Cosadein, the Elixir of Terpin Hydrate . . ."

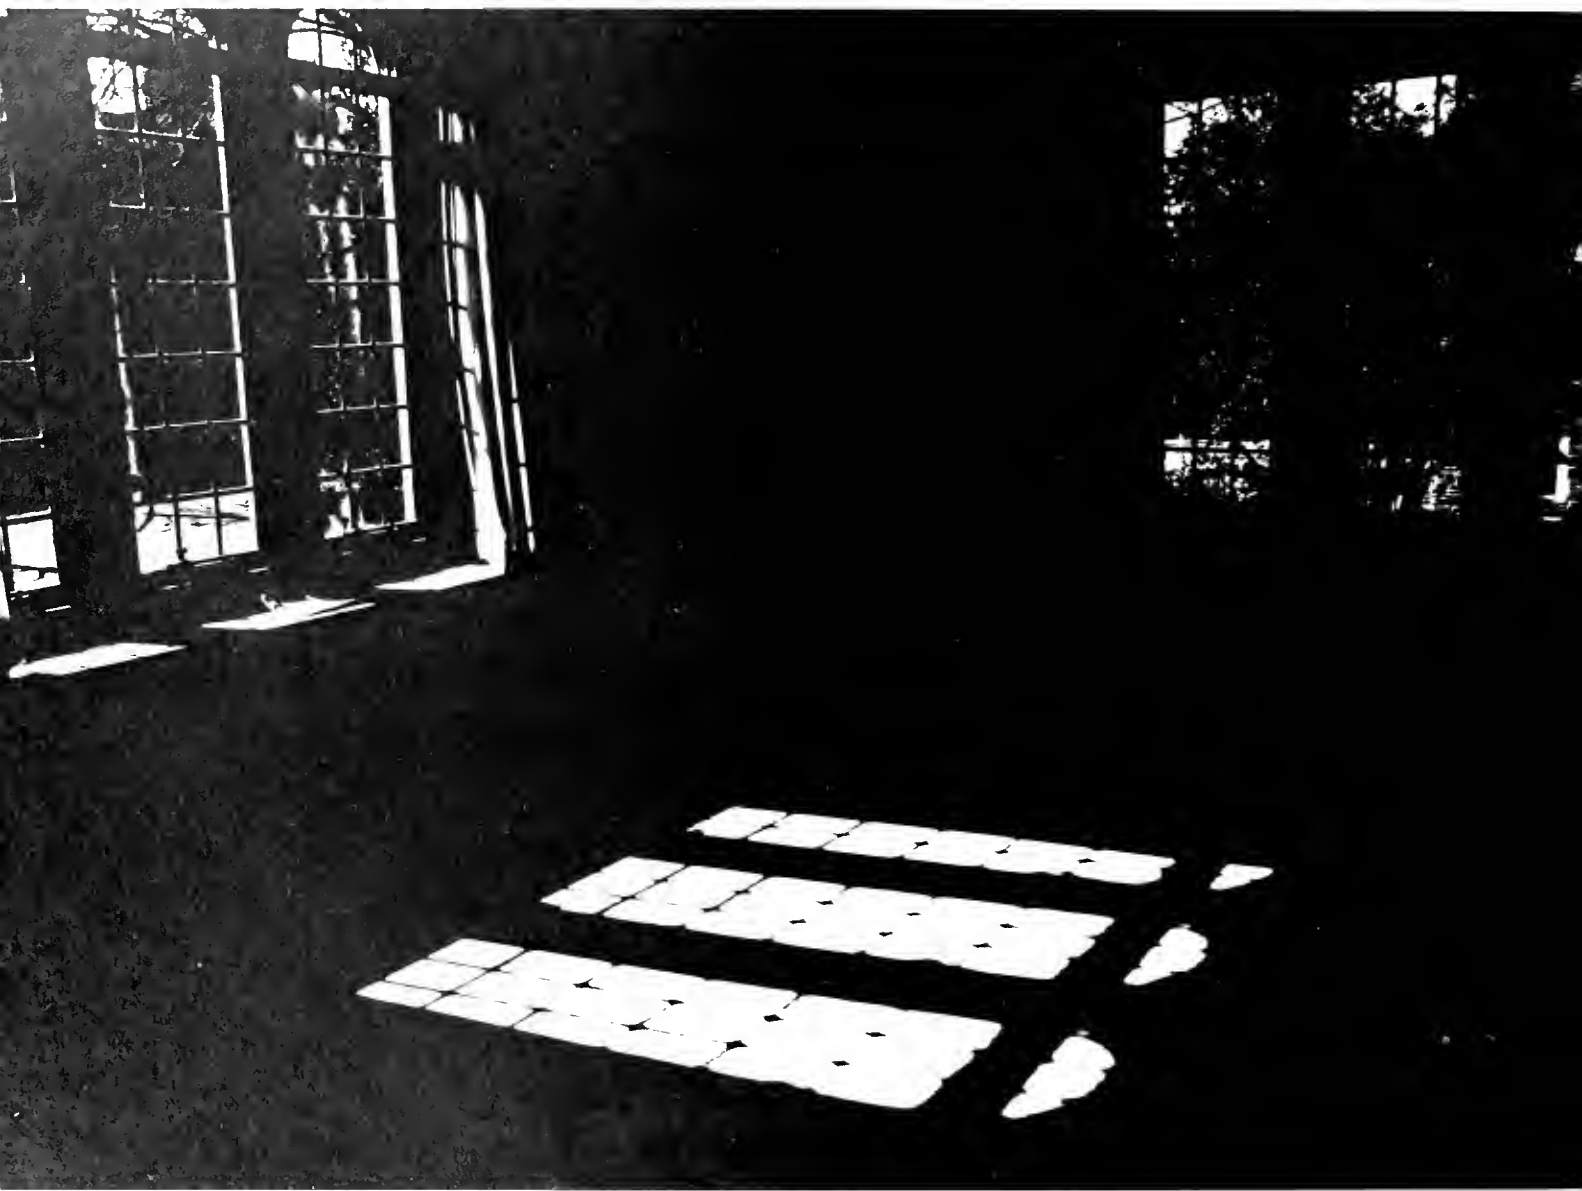

"How about the Robitussin with codeine?" He thought for a second, walked off behind the counter and looked around for a while. Then he looked up and shouted half-way across the store, "I can give you the Robitussin WITH THE A-C if you want that."

I paid the going price, which is up a few shickles from last year by the way, and while I was inventing some name to sign the book with, I thought to myself why can't all the pill-counters be like this?

For those of you who get your aesthetic pleasures out of fine cocillana compounds, I am sorry to report that as of this time, times are rough again. But if you find any obscure druggists, do let me know; I would treasure the information.

Note to West Campus Living Groups:

Experience with irresponsible people, especially trespassers who have no connection with the university, indicates the necessity of restating the policy that has been and continues to be in effect.

Except for through traffic using the drive between East and West campuses, the Woman's College campus in general and specifically the area surrounding the dormitories is closed at night to non-residents after the closing hours of Woman's College dorms.

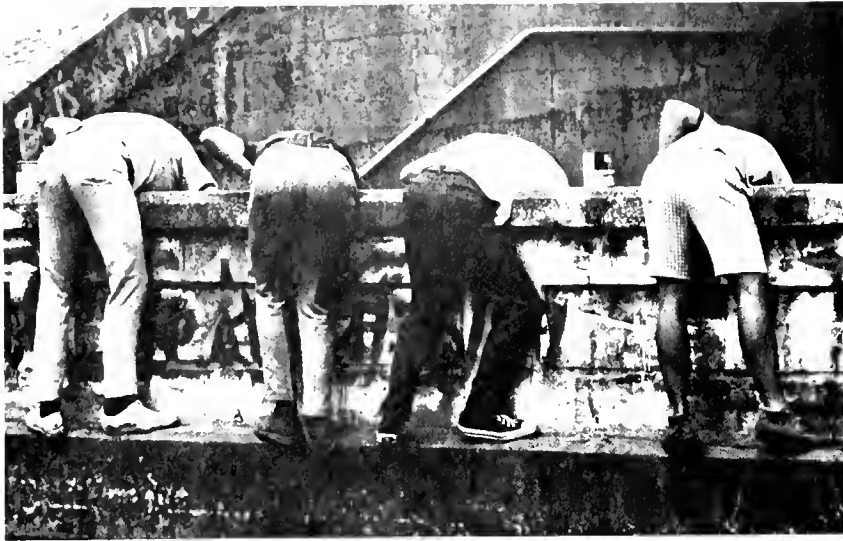

Any and all violators are liable to arrest by officers of Duke University Security Department.

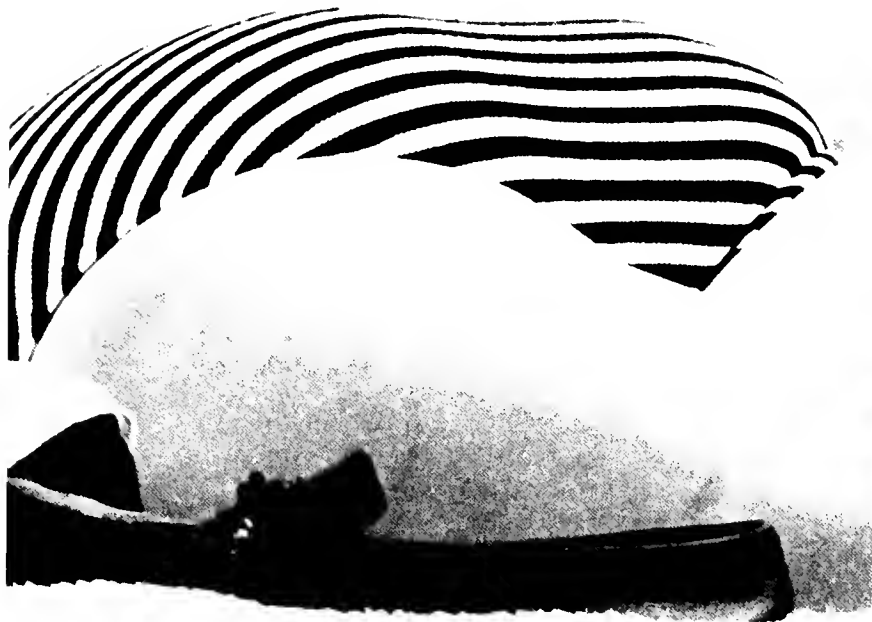

Women at Duke and elsewhere are discarding the female stereotype placed on them by society. And men are beginning to realize that women are their equals—if not their superiors. Only by stopping the process of socialization by which both men and women are fitted into their respective sex stereotypes can the full potential of the male-female relationship be expressed.

Jocks? They're people. People immediately stereotype people here. KA—fratman—jock—animal. Well, just a beautiful case of stupidity was B.S. in this dorm complaining that in the federation next year the SAE's would be across the quad from us. I couldn't believe it; it wouldn't matter if they put nurses or anyone across from us. People are people. (Except for profs, that is. Some profs on this campus just can't be human; they're more like Simon LeGree.) One thing I never liked about the KA's was the way they would just look at someone with long hair and immediately call him a creep. Bingo. Immediately stereotype them. They never looked at someone inside. But then, everyone labelled the KA's animal or something like that. Even the freshman girls on East Campus were told to stay away from KA's. I just can't tolerate that. It's unjustifiable to categorize people by outer appearances.

I have a lot of non-athlete friends; it just takes getting to know someone and not trying to make them into something they're not. A lot of the people here are in their own little world, though; they're unfriendly and don't seem to care about other people. I mean you walk down the quad and smile at someone, and they look at you like you're an utter fool! If you meet a girl walking along, she sticks her head down. You want to say, 'Watch out or you'll walk into something!!' I guess it's just the school. You're always under pressure—always worried that you're going to get screwed. I've visited other schools, and the people really caught me off guard—they were so warm and friendly. I thought for a while it was just the intellectual atmosphere here, but I was up at Yale recently and the people there were really friendly. They'd smile at you and talk to you. Definitely one factor that contributes to this attitude at Duke is the segregation of campuses. Hopefully that'll change next year. It should; it has to! It's not normal. Another thing that probably introverts people at Duke is the zero social life. It would be nice, I guess, if articles like this in the yearbook would make people think, but I guess that's a lot to hope. I don't know. I didn't like last year's yearbook. I mean I don't think a nude girl is symbolic of Duke. It's something ten years later I wouldn't want to say, 'Look, son, here's where I went to school,' and there stands this big-tittied girl. Ideally everyone should participate in the yearbook, but I guess that's impossible. Most people don't have time to participate in things like that. They just sit back and bitch without doing anything. But, also, a lot of people just jump on the bandwagon and don't give a damn about what they're doing. Like the 'militant.' Some black guy will grow his hair long — Go Blacks! Wow! He's a black panther! And he doesn't give a damn about black people. We need to be dedicated. I don't care what someone does if they're dedicated. Then, it's beautiful.

You've got to be dedicated to play good collegiate football; everything you do has got to be for football! Like at Tennessee and some other places you go to school to play football. You can't do that at Duke because of the academic standards. You can't devote everything to football here — Duke doesn't offer basket weaving for athletes like at some of the big state schools. I must say, though, that I've never had any bum breaks from professors because I'm an athlete. But it's never been any easier for me because I played football. Crip courses can be found for everyone — not just athletes, and we get no special treatment.

Sports are a mental and physical release for me, but it's not fun anymore. Athletics at Duke are conducted under adverse conditions. People don't support the teams that much — probably because the teams haven't been winning. There's nothing better than running out onto the field and seeing a full house and hearing the crowd cheer — to know that they've all come to see you play. I'm not saying that football players should be viewed as gods; that's wrong. But even the few people that do support the teams are hypocritical. They'll cheer you on the weekends and heckle you on the quad. They don't like the fact that we're being paid — while academic scholarships keep going down. Well, like one of the ASDU presidential candidates called J. and me 'ignorant jocks.' J. almost killed him.

High school football was fun whereas college football is a business; as soon as you sign that scholarship, you've somehow signed your life away to a business for four years. You're an investment trying to make money for them. It's so easy to lose all interest in the game when it ceases being a sport. This year the whole thing was like a Mickey Mouse show. Even when not playing, I should have been able to give something morally to the team, but I just didn't have the desire. It got to be a drag. Yet, we had to win in spite of all this!

You know the athletes, though, have changed here. You don't hear about people being beaten up by jocks anymore because it doesn't happen. Most athletes used to try to show their physical prowess, to try to play badman, but, it's different now. And this could be the reason we're having losing football teams.

You see, football is war. You've got to hate the other guy; you've got to want to hurt him. It may be a savage way of thinking, but it's the only way to play the game good.

Blue Jeans

Blue Jeans is a group of enthusiastic Duke coeds dedicated to service to the Duke and Durham community. Each girl is asked to give a minimum of eight hours of service each semester. Blue Jeans' service projects include: a faculty work weekend where the girls donate a few hours of their time to do jobs for the faculty; a campus clean-up week where the members wash windows, polish trophies and handrails, and tear down old signs; painting one of the downtown YWCA's; ushering for home basketball games and Duke Artists' Series; and babysitting and other miscellaneous jobs for the faculty. Any money earned by the Blue Jeans goes toward their current project of building a rain shelter for the students waiting for buses on East Campus.

The Moose Who Came For Dinner

by Samuel Beckett

Summary of last five installments:

Once upon a time there was a little boy whose parents were so mean that they locked him up in the attic and only let him out at night when he would go to the park. There he met a little girl whose parents only let her out at night, too. She became pregnant and the little boy ran away and only wrote her a letter now and then and even then mostly asked for money. Though life had been cruel the little girl vowed she wouldn't lock her son up in the attic so he grew up and became a lumberjack on the Dudley Do-Right Show.

Meanwhile, through a combination of events too numerous to enumerate, Nell Fenwick was tied to a log and was about to be put through the sawmill. (Nell is the only girl on the Dudley Do-Right Show and our hero had never seen her before and so consequently she was the first girl he had ever seen.) Our hero fell immediately in love with her and strove mightily to figure out a way to save her. Crazy with lust as he was, the only thing he could think to do was throw himself on the sawblade which brings us to our present episode entitled:

Is God Dead, Again?

Cosmic Longing — played by a Moose beset by A Creeping Sense of Absurdity and philosophical muddleheadedness.

Material Values — played by three Eskimos who are restless in the midst of their prosperity

Setting: an igloo

Eskimo mother: We're having moose for dinner.

Eskimo children: No, not moose again!

Afro-American Eskimo: I want lasagna.

Italian Eskimo: The man's been messing with your mind. You're a dupe of the chain food stores, a pawn of the military industrial complex. Let's have hog jowls and grits.

Afro-American Eskimo: Don't badmouth lasagna to me, cracker, or I'm gonna stomp you real mean!

(Pan camera to moose at window, who shakes his head and walks away.)

The copy on the back of the front end-sheet is verse one from The Way of Life According to Lao Tzu, 1962 edition, Witter Bynner, translator, Capricorn Books, New York.

The idea for the photo composite on page one was derived from a painting by René Magritte.

The copy on page 19 is an editorial comment.

The quotation on page 73 is an excerpt from an article in the Durham Morning Herald concerning Mr. Hanes' resignation in protest of the 1970 Yearbook.

The paragraphs on pages 74-75 are direct quotations in reply to a student body survey conducted by the Publications Board.

Dr. Hip's quotation, page 140, is from his February 8 address in Page Auditorium.

The copy on page 164 is an excerpt from Act Four of Eugene O'Neill's Long Day's Journey Into Night.

The copy on page 188 is a memorandum to residents of West Campus from Mr. C. J. Viza, Director of University Security.

The heading on pages 200-201 is paraphrased from a statement in the 1970 edition of the Duke University Guide to Contraception and Abortion.

The copy on page 205 is an excerpt from Molly Bloom's soliloquy in James Joyce's Ulysses.

The phrase on page 301 is by Bob Dylan.

The statue in the photographs on pages 180-181 was furnished by Dr. Mac Linscott Ricketts.

Complaints, praises, suggestions, etc., concerning the Chanticleer may be mailed to Box 4873, Duke Station, phoned in to 684-2920, or delivered with that personal touch to room 304, Union Tower.

It has been a pleasure to serve you. Thank you. Come again!
